NOPE Fanart and Analysis

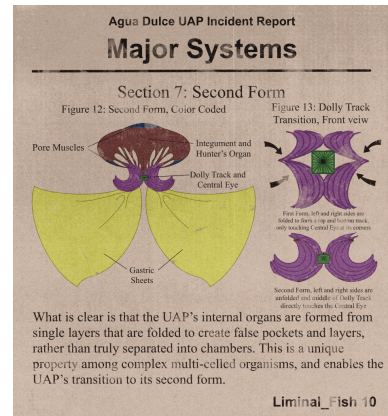

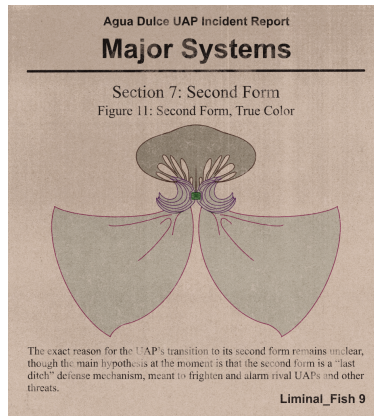

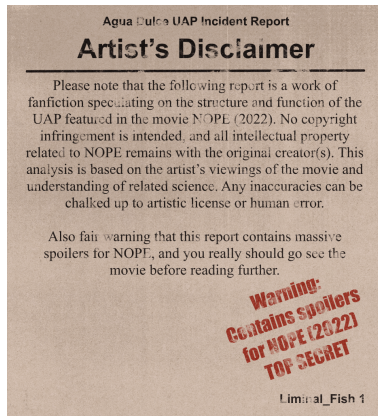

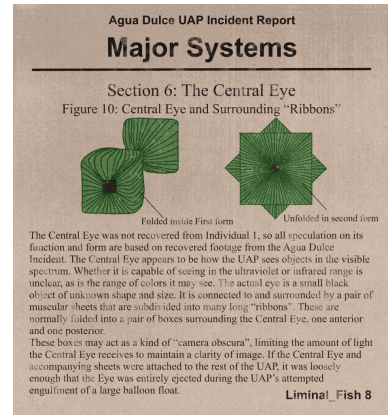

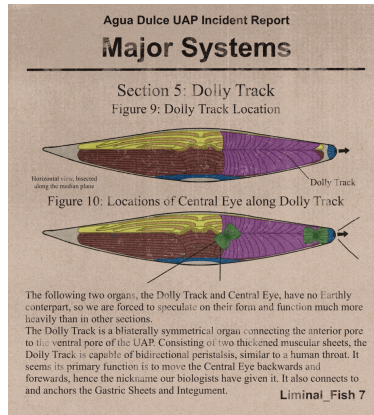

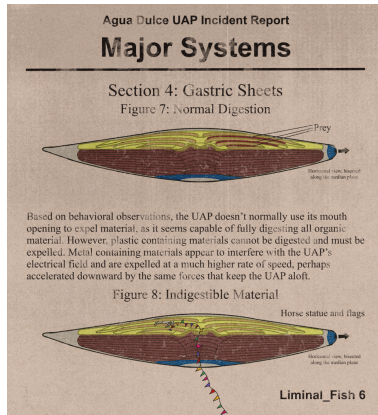

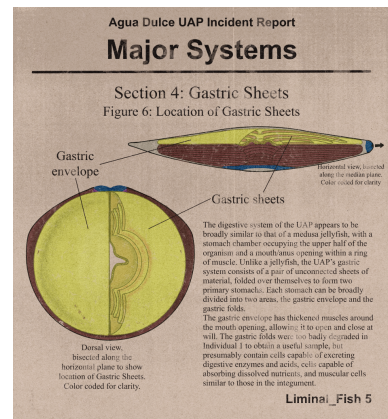

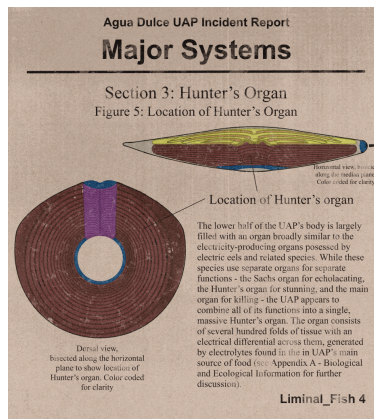

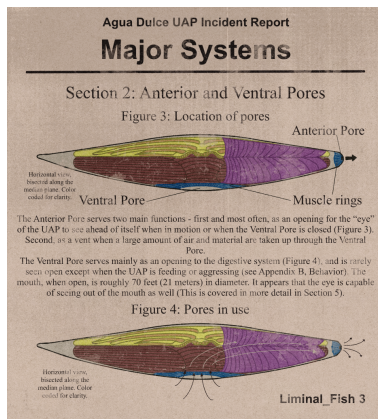

Spoilers! You've been warned.

When I first caught NOPE opening weekend, I was a little obsessed with the anatomy of the alien. I wound up falling down a bit of a rabbit hole exploring the themes and background of the movie.

I was especially fascinated by the anatomy of Jean Jacket. I could tell it was inspired by any number of sea creatures, and as someone who used to work in wildlife/marine biology, I found that fascinating! So I put together a study of how it might work based on what we saw in the movie and my understanding of biology. It turned into a massive project, so I chose to style it like a government incident report that had been stolen by a low level employee.

Section 7: Second Form

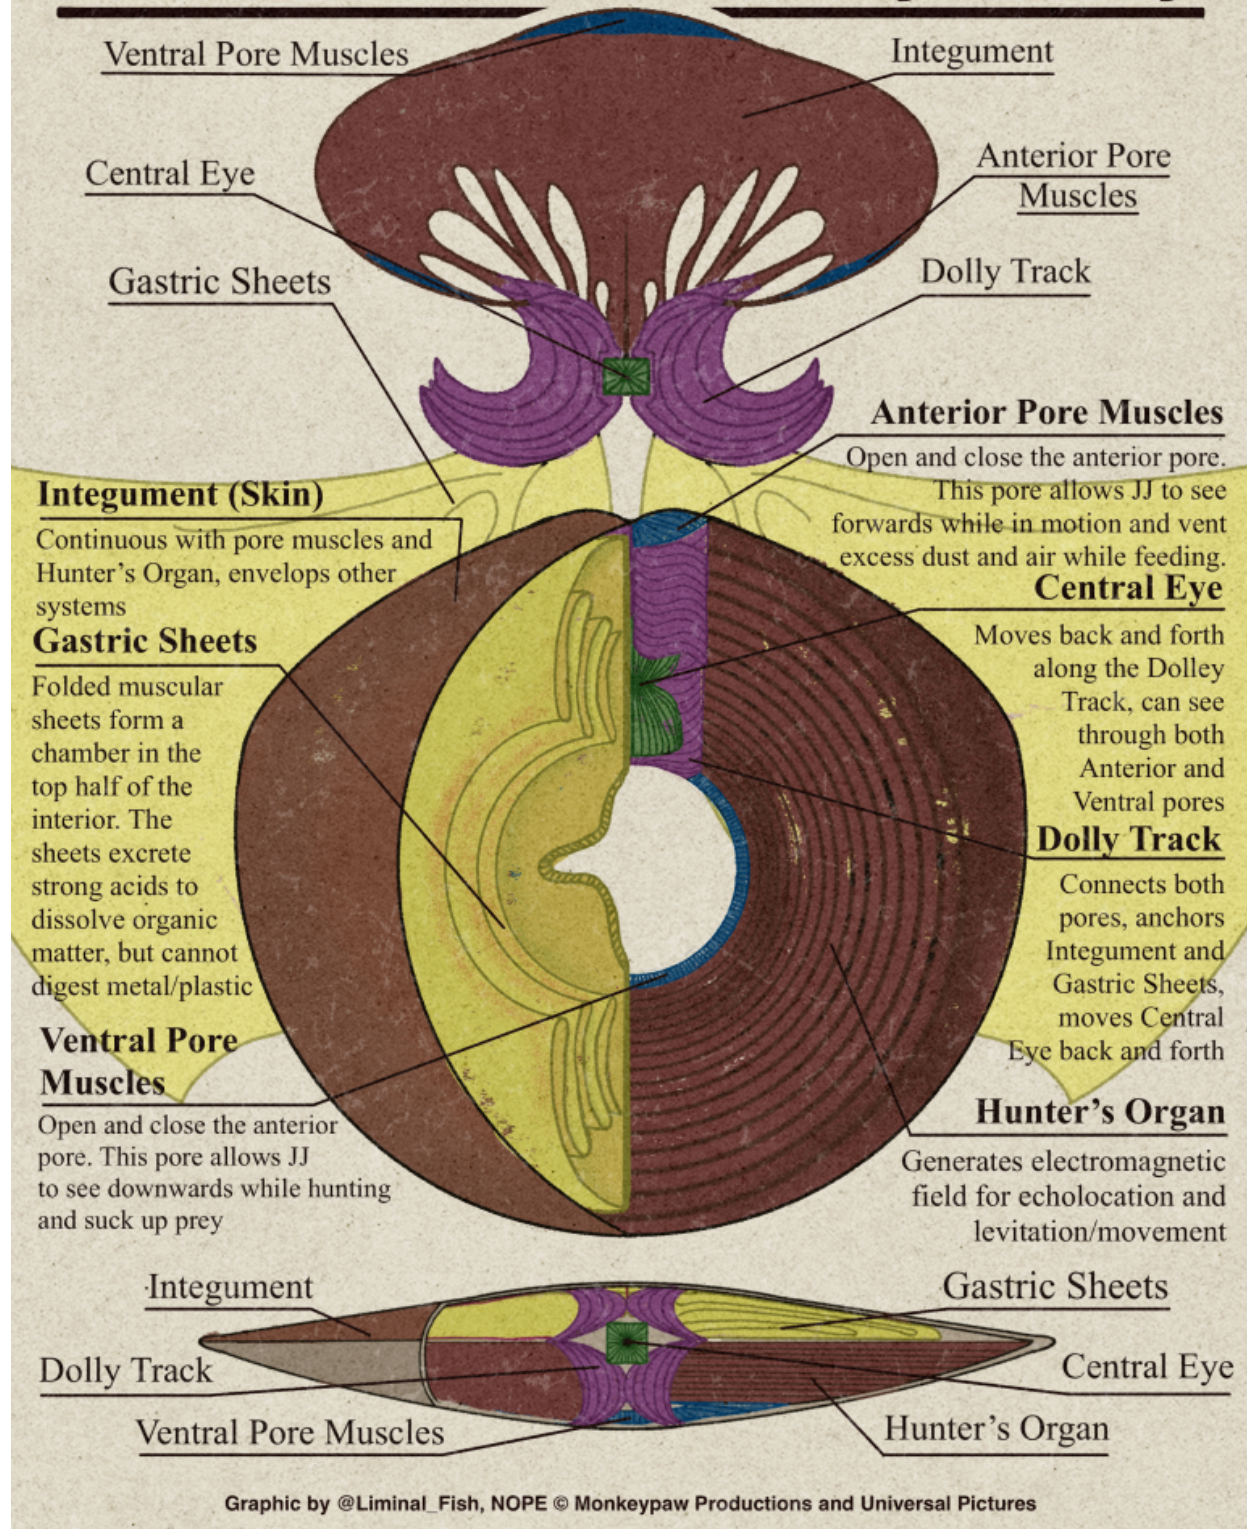

In Figures 13-16, we lay out the theorized mechanism for the transition to the second form, from the unfolding of the gastric sheets to the flipping of the integument.

And then I compacted all of that information into a poster.
